Sam

Who's putting together the questions for the interview on Wednesday?

Richard

Sam, you're the team lead. Isn't it your job? Maggie did it last time.

Sam

I want the questions come from the team.

Maggie

Sam, I won't have time. We need to finish the tests so we can release on Thursday. Richard, can you jump in?

Sam

My calendar is filled up and it's already in 2 days.

Richard

I still don't think it's my responsibility but I can put something together for Wednesday

Shared understanding

A team with no shared understanding is adrift,
Each member with their own view, no common gift.
Like a boat without a rudder, they spin in place,
No progress, no direction, no pace.

Shared understanding

The team may have great skills, but they don't align,
Their efforts cancel out like waves in decline.
Each voice may be heard, but they don't resonate,
Their purpose lost, like a ship that can't navigate.

Shared understanding

But with shared understanding, the team can steer,
Like a compass that guides, with nothing to fear.
Their strengths will combine like a sail in the breeze,
Their potential unlocked, with unity they seize.

Shared understanding

So let's work to align and create a shared view.
With clarity and purpose, we'll know what to do.
For a team with shared understanding can move ahead
Towards their goals with nothing to dread.

Shared understanding

If ChatGPT gets it, you should too!
